

Kerri and Ron are a wonderful new approach to comedy. They remind me of George Burns and Gracie Allen, another terrific husband/wife team. But even better, just by working together with funny and insightful jibes, they make subliminal statements about marriage, culture, ethnicity and plain human understanding--all in non-stop laugh mode. Quite an appealing package! They came on at the end of a long night after live auctions, golf awards, some music and dinner..not a great spot for comics...but in a couple of minutes they had the whole scatteredcrowd eating out of their hands (of course, they were handing out Krispy Kremes, but still). I'd love to share the bill with them anytime.
